ITALIAN LAKES' TOP 10

TOP 10 The Italian Lakes' Highlights

The spectacular natural beauty of the Italian Lakes region, sheltering under the Alps at the top of Italy, is matched by its historical legacy. Attractive lake villages, laidback resorts and pretty towns offer a variety of fine art, architecture and cuisine, as well as unlimited opportunities for walking, cycling and watersports activities. The climate is special too, with the larger lakes acting as solar batteries producing a temperate climate.

1 Isola Bella
The sumptuous rooms of the palace of Isola Bella on Lake Maggiore only begin to prepare you for the extravagant terraced gardens and their grottoes (see pp8–9).

2 Northern Lake Maggiore
Italy melts into Switzerland at the northern end of Lake Maggiore and the Alps loom larger. Stunning displays of flora flourish in the lake's peculiar microclimate in the small, attractive resorts dotted around here (see pp10–11).

3 Orta San Giulio
Lake Orta's honey-coloured village, Orta San Giulio, is nestled between the quiet woods of its Sacro Monte, or Holy Mountain, and the lake with Isola San Giulio opposite (see pp12–13).

4 Como
Wrapped around a bay at the southern end of Lake Como, the silk-producing town of Como is a historical place with a grand cathedral and cobbled streets within a medieval wall (see pp14–15).

5 Milan

Famous as the home of fashion and design, Milan also boasts ancient churches, a magnificent Gothic cathedral and a host of museums (see pp16–17).

6 Verona

Just east of Lake Garda, romantic Verona is the perfect blend of ancient streets, historical buildings and fine food and wine (see pp20–21).

7 Centro Lago and its Villages

At the centre of Lake Como – the Centro Lago – where the three branches of the lake meet, stands Bellagio, with its pretty village centre of stepped streets (see pp22–3).

8 Bergamo

Venetian walls surround Bergamo's upper town, while orchards and vineyards tumble down the hillside to the 19th-century avenues of the lower town (see pp24–5).

9 Lake Idro and the Valvestino

The villages and hamlets in this forgotten corner of Lombardy sandwiched between Lake Garda and Lake Iseo shelter clean waters, pristine countryside and a pace of life rarely found in 21st-century Europe (see pp26–7).

10 Sirmione and Southern Lake Garda

The very popular resort of Sirmione with its Roman ruins and remarkably intact medieval castle juts out into the sapphire waters of Southern Lake Garda. Nearby, there is a host of attractive lakeside villages that boast ancient centres, Grand Hotels and excellent beaches (see pp28–9).

TOP 10 Isola Bella

Once home to a fishing village, this craggy little island on Lake Maggiore was acquired in 1632 by the aristocratic Borromeo family and named for Carlo III's wife, Isabella (the name being contracted to Isola Bella). The island was transformed into a vast garden-and-palace complex by architects Giovanni Angelo Crivelli and Andrea Biffi, who created the dizzying series of chambers that comprise the palace, and sculpted the garden into high terraces, erupting with cypress and citrus trees. It is hard not to be seduced by the artful planting, exuberant statuary and the white peacocks that stalk the gardens.

Intricately decorated interior of a grotto

Try to arrive early when the palace opens: this is the best way to avoid crowds, which can be overwhelming in July and August.

The palace café, located behind the Teatro Massimo, is a better bet for a simple lunch than the run-of-the-mill stalls clustered by the waterfront.

- 4 Galleria degli Arazzi
- 5 Grottoes
- 6 Teatro Massimo
- 7 Sala da Ballo
- 8 Giardino d'Amore
- 9 Sala delle Medaglie
- 10 Atrio di Diana

1 Stanza dello Zuccarelli

Named after the Rococo painter Francesco Zuccarelli, the walls of this stanza are adorned with his picturesque scenes (above) of rich and frolicsome 18th-century maidens in idealized sylvan landscapes.

2 Sala di Napoleone

Salmon pink walls decorated with paintings, ornate stucco work, rich furnishings and a tall brocade bed are the highlights of this elegant and sumptuous room (right) in which Napoleon and his wife Josephine slept when they stayed on the island in 1797.

3 Borromeo Chapel

Built in the 1840s in high Gothic style rather than in the elaborate Baroque mode that characterizes the rest of the palace, this private chapel is the lofty tomb of Vitaliano and Giovanni Borromeo, carved in Carrara marble.

4 Galleria degli Arazzi

This long gallery is hung with wonderfully intricate 16th-century Flemish tapestries. These vivid works of art (above) feature unicorns, lions and scarlet birds in fantastical woodland settings.

5 Grottoes

A retreat for the hot summer months, this is an extraordinary series of cave-like chambers down at water level. Every inch of the grottoes' surface is encrusted with coloured stones. There is the odd marble statue too, including a recumbent naked woman.

6 Teatro Massimo

The Teatro Massimo is the dramatic high point of the island's gardens, with tiers of cherubs, Greek gods and obelisks. There are sweeping views of the lake from the upper terrace (above).

7 Sala da Ballo

Adorned with classical pillars and embracing statues, the large and elegant marble ballroom (above) is the dramatic centrepiece of the palace chambers.

8 Giardino d'Amore

These Italianate gardens (main image) sit below the Teatro Massimo, and look rather restrained in comparison to its grandeur. The swirling symmetrical topiary of the garden is punctuated with bright rose bushes.

9 Sala delle Medaglie

Named for the ten gilded wooden medallions placed above the doors, this was the banqueting chamber (above) of the palace. You can't miss the magnificent 18th-century Murano crystal chandelier, the highlight of the room.

10 Atrio di Diana

A pretty alcove (above), lush with ferns and mosses. A wistful statue of Diana the huntress at its centre is the romantic entry point to the gardens.

The Stresa Music Festival

Founded in 1961, this festival of classical music (Aug–mid-Sep) has spread well beyond the boundaries of Stresa itself, including Isola Bella: a magical venue for an open-air concert. Check www.stresafestival.eu for details, and book tickets well in advance. Other likely locations include Santa Caterina (see p62), and the Rocca Borromeo, as well as various other villas and churches.

TOP 10 Northern Lake Maggiore

Lake Maggiore (also called Verbano), narrows at its northern tip with steep mountain ranges pushing in on the resorts and lakeside towns. Italy merges into Switzerland for the final loop of the lake where the roads improve dramatically. Sleepy attractive Italian villages dot the area while further ahead there are the well established holiday resorts in Swiss towns. The climate around the lake is ideal for sailing and windsurfing and also encourages banks of camellias, rhododendrons and palm trees that line the shores.

Statue, Isole di Brissago

Motorists will find that petrol is cheaper in Switzerland. There are few petrol stations near the border on the Italian side.

1 Lake Maggiore Express

A round-trip that combines a boat on Lake Maggiore (main image), the spectacular Centovalli Railway and a fast train back to the lakeshore. This is a good value way to explore the mountains and take in the beautiful scenery around the lake.

2 Sunday Market, Cannobio

One of the lake's most attractive villages is taken over every Sunday morning by a market (above) along the waterfront. Stalls offer everything from fresh local produce to leather goods, cheap shoes and clothing. There is also a wide selection of food available at the market.

3 Windsurfing, Pino

Just short of the border with Switzerland, on the eastern shore of Maggiore, Pino offers many windsurfing (below) and kitesurfing opportunities. There are courses available for all levels, plus board hire.

4 Cannero Riviera
In a corner of the western shore, this pretty resort village (above) of cobbled lanes boasts a blue-flag beach and a boating harbour facing two tiny islands.

5 Ascona
Galleries and craft shops crowd the cobbled streets that lead back from picturesque Piazza Motta at the lakefront in this Swiss town. Ascona is a big attraction for northern Europeans, especially artists.

6 Wednesday Market, Luino
Bus- and ferry-loads of visitors head for the weekly market (left) at Luino, on the eastern shore of the lake. The stalls here offer everything, often including the kitchen sink.

7 Locarno
The Swiss resort of Locarno (right) has been welcoming visitors since Roman times. Its highlights include the 14th-century Castello Visconteo and artworks in the 17th-century Casa Rusca.

8 Orrido di Sant'Anna, Cannobio
At the start of Val Cannobino, the Orrido di Sant'Anna is a spectacular gorge marked by a medieval church and a restaurant. The pebbly river beach makes an ideal picnic spot.

10 Santuario della Pietà, Cannobio
Located on the waterfront, the lovely 16th-century Santuario della Pietà (above) was built on the orders of Cardinal Carlo Borromeo when the village was spared the worst of a plague that decimated the local population.

9 Isole di Brissago
The tiny islands of Sant'Apollinare and San Pancrazio that lie just offshore in Switzerland comprise the Isole di Brissago. San Pancrazio, the larger island, has a luxuriant botanical garden.

A Farewell to Arms

Ernest Hemmingway's World War I novel A Farewell to Arms is set on the Italian Front, in Milan and on Lake Maggiore. American ambulance driver Frederic Henry drinks martinis in Stresa before being reunited with British nurse Catherine Barkley. To escape the Italian authorities they row through the night to cross the border into Switzerland.

Remember to carry your passport with you if crossing over the border between Italy and Switzerland.

TOP 10 Orta San Giulio

Lake Orta (also known as Cusio), the westernmost of the Italian lakes, lies entirely within the region of Piemonte, and is characterized by soft hills and steep wooded slopes of chestnut trees flanking its sides. The highlight is the delightful lakeside village of Orta San Giulio – a string of cobbled lanes and attractive Liberty villas. Above the village is the striking Sacro Monte, an atmospheric sanctuary with spectacular views over the waters, and just offshore, the tiny island of Isola San Giulio offers a retreat from the modern world.

Cheese at Orta's Wednesday market

Some 3 km (2 miles) out of Orta San Giulio is the Orta-Miasino station – a stop on the small Novara-Domodossola branch line.

The gastronomia on the central Piazza Motta will make up your favourite panino to take away.

1 Market

Since 1228, Orta's Wednesday market has taken over the main waterside square of Piazza Motta, offering a host of fresh local produce – vegetables, fruit, salami, cheese and meat.

2 Rowing on the Lake

Lake Orta is perfectly scenic and great for a spot of rowing (above). Boatmen on Piazza Motta rent out rowing boats by the hour.

3 Sacro Monte di San Francesco

Winding through the nature reserve above town is the Sacro Monte (Holy Mountain) path, lined with 20 chapels (right) with 17th–18th-century terracotta works from the life of Saint Francis of Assisi.

4 Isola San Giulio

The quiet wooded island of San Giulio (main image) is located west of Orta San Giulio. Reached by a shuttle boat service from Piazza Motta, it is home to a community of nuns. The 19th-century Benedictine seminary and graceful bell tower dominate the skyline while the basilica, a convent, and a few villas occupy the other buildings.

5 Via Olina
Narrow cobble Via Olina (left) is Orta's main thoroughfare, named after one of the Renaissance palazzi that line the street. A pleasant mix of eclectic boutiques and delicatessens offer souvenirs to take home.

6 Palazzo della Comunità

Built in 1582, the lovely Palazzo Motta in the main square is raised up on porticoes and reached by an external staircase. The court and council room is decorated by the Baroque fresco, Madonna and Francesco and Giulio.

7 Il Trenino

This little motorized train (below) trundles through the streets taking the puff out of Orta's steep gradients. A trip between the hilltop tourist office and Piazza Motta is covered in 30 minutes.

Saint Julius (San Giulio)

According to legend, Julius arrived in Orta in 390 AD from his native Greece, escaping persecution as a Christian. At the time, the island was guarded by serpents and dragons and no one was willing to row him to it. Julius used his cape as a sail and single-handedly rid the island of the beasts and built the church that also houses his remains.

8 Basilica di San Giulio

The island-church was founded in the first century AD, although the current building is from the 10th century with Baroque touch-ups. Frescoes depicting the saints' lives line the walls inside the church. Do not miss the 12th-century black marble pulpit covered with allegorical carvings of good versus evil.

9 Piazza Motta

The village alleyways wind around the heart of Orta – the Piazza Motta (below) – a broad piazza dotted with cafés and lakeside benches. A lovely spot to watch the world go by.

10 Leon d'Oro

In a region of idyllic locations, it still does not get much better than at the Leon d'Oro. The restaurant is part of a family-run hotel with few pretensions and boasts a lovely terrace over the water.

TOP 10 Como

Nestled at the foot of the Alps, the affluent little lakeside town of Como has been an important place commercially and politically since pre-Roman times. After invading armies stopped vying for its attention in the late 19th century, Como became a wealthy backwater, combining textile manufacturing with its role as staging post for the many tourists here to enjoy the romantic delights of Lake Como. The partly walled old town is a pleasant maze of cobbled pedestrianized streets leading down to the palm-lined waterfront promenade.

Villa Geno, Como

A ferry with a picture of a knife and fork on the timetable means that there is a restaurant on board.

1 The Duomo
Como's cathedral (below) is a harmonious mix of architectural styles. The sweeping lines of the Gothic façade blend with a Renaissance rose window and is topped with a Baroque dome.

3 Villa Olmo
A grand 17th-century villa on the site of an ancient elm forest, Villa Olmo has sumptuous, frescoed interiors that are used to host temporary exhibitions. The villa's formal lakefront gardens make a pleasant public park.

4 Brunate
Perched at the top of the funicular track, little Brunate offers wonderful views across Como and the lake, and is the starting point of many trails into the hills. Cafés and restaurants here are especially busy for Sunday lunch.

2 The Funicular
Como's little yellow funicular train (below) hauls up and down between the town's villas and gardens. The funicular station is in the north-east corner of Como, and is easily reached by foot. The steep climb takes 7 minutes to reach Brunate at the top of the hill.

5 Museo Civico

The quiet little Museo Civico (above), with its pretty courtyard, is housed in two elegant palazzi. Roman artifacts, period costumes and memorabilia from the Italian Unification period are on display.

6 Palazzo Terragni

Designed by Italian architect Giuseppe Terragni as the local Fascist Party headquarters in the 1930s, the harmonious proportions of Palazzo Terragni are seen as the definitive example of Rationalist architecture for their light, functional beauty.

7 Boat Trips

Regular ferries link the villages scattered around the area up and down the lake. Hydrofoil express services and more leisurely sight-seeing cruises are also available. Boat services from Como run all year round with a reduced timetable in winter.

8 San Fedele

Founded in 914, San Fedele (left) was once Como's cathedral. It has a striking octagonal apse and 14th-century frescoes as well as an ornate door decorated with portly figures and a griffin.

9 Villa Geno

A 30-minute stroll around the bay from Como centre brings you to the grounds of Villa Geno, where the splendid fountain on the waterfront is a must see.

Sant'Abbondio

Consecrated to the patron saint of Como in 1095, this attractive Romanesque church has colourful Byzantine frescoes adorning its walls (right).

A Centre for Silk

Como has been Europe's most important silk centre since the 14th century. Although these days the raw fibre is imported, Como is still renowned for its top quality silk goods crafted for designer labels. Small, family-run factories dotted around the outskirts of the town specialize in the low-run, exclusive and high quality merchandise demanded by the world's leading fashion houses such as Gucci, Versace, Hermès and Chanel.

Remember to carry your passport if you are visiting Switzerland, 5 km (3 miles) away from Como.

TOP 10 Milan

Milan is the economic heart of Italy: the centre of banking, publishing and industry as well as a design and fashion capital of the world. Guarding the route from Rome to central Europe and linked to the Adriatic sea by a series of waterways, it has always been a strategic political and commercial hub. Milan was badly bombed by the Allied forces during World War II leaving a disjointed mix of architectural styles. But it is a beguiling place with a wealth of treasures hidden in its medieval lanes, 19th-century arcades and Roman ruins.

1 The Duomo

The third largest church in Europe, Milan’s Gothic Duomo (below) took almost 430 years to complete. It soars up out of the central Piazza del Duomo, a confection of stone spires and statues. Clamber over the roof and enjoy the stunning views across the city.

2 Pinacoteca di Brera

Opened in 1809 by Napoleon as a public museum, this is the most important collection of North Italian art in the world. The Renaissance highlights include masterpieces by Raphael and Mantegna.

3 La Scala

The world-famous opera house opened its opulent interior to the public in 1778. Information on tickets is available from the website.

4 Parco Sempione

The castle’s old hunting grounds (below) are Milan’s largest extent of green. Lawns, cafés, a design museum, a children’s playground and a library keep it bustling.

Avoid sightseeing on a Monday when most galleries and museums are closed.

5 Quadrilatero d'Oro

The sleek displays (above) in the windows of top fashion labels are a feast for the eyes. Prices may be prohibitive but every style and taste is catered for.

6 Galleria Vittorio Emanuele II

This smart shopping arcade (left) opened in 1865, linking the cathedral square with the opera house. The mosaics under the glass dome celebrate the Unification of Italy.

7 Castello Sforzesco

The rambling castle complex was begun in 1368 by the rulers of Milan, the Visconti, and continued by their successors, the Sforza. Converted into a museum and gallery a century ago, its highlight is Michelangelo's unfinished sculpture, Rondanini Pietà.

8 Navigli District

A buzzing restaurant and bar scene has grown up around two of Milan's remaining canals (right). There is a bric-a-brac market here on the last Sunday of the month.

9 Sant'Ambrogio

Founded in the 4th century by Milan's patron saint, St Ambrose, this is the city's most beautiful church. The capitals of the columns in the colonnaded atrium are decorated with horses, dragons and other beasts.

10 The Last Supper

One of the world's greatest works of art, Leonardo da Vinci's The Last Supper (above) was painted on a refectory wall at the Santa Maria delle Grazie monastery.

Milan's Canals

Until the beginning of the 20th century many of Milan's main thoroughfares were canals. Originally developed for defence and goods transport, the canals were eventually built over to install the speedier tram network. From the first intervention in the 11th century, the network was gradually added to until the city was linked by waterway with Switzerland and the lakes to the north and to the south, to the River Po and therefore to the Adriatic sea.

Left Relief, bronze door Centre View of the roof, Duomo Right Statue of St Bartholomew Flayed

TOP 10 The Duomo

1 St Bartholomew Flayed

One of the cathedral's strangest statues is the oddly beguiling and gruesome carving of St Bartholomew Flayed by Marco d'Agrate (1562). The saint stands calmly with his skin flung rather jauntily over his shoulder and has fascinatingly accurate knees and toenails hanging lifelessly.

2 Nail from the Cross

A red light on a crucifix in the ceiling marks the cathedral's most prized possession – a nail from Christ's Cross. On 14 September, a complicated system of pulleys lowers the nail down to be paraded by the Bishop of Milan.

3 Scurolo di San Carlo

The bejewelled remains of San Carlo Borromeo, the city's 16th-century cardinal and champion of the poor, are laid out in the crypt. He lies in a glass coffin clothed and with a mask, gloves and a golden crown.

4 Battistero Paleocristiano

A narrow staircase leads down to the site discovered during work on the metro in the 1950s. There are the remains of Roman baths, and a 4th-century basilica, as well as the baptistery where Saint Ambrose baptized Saint Augustine in 387 AD.

5 The Façade

In 1813, the opulent façade of the Duomo was finally completed on orders from Napoleon, who was to be crowned King of Italy inside the Duomo. The soaring Neo-Gothic frontage is punctuated with a riot of colourful stained glass windows and five solid doors with bronze reliefs dating back to the 20th century.

6 Treasury

Beside the crypt under the altar, the treasury holds a fine and extensive collection of embroidered vestments, intricate 4th-century goldwork and some very early ivory carvings dating from the 10th century.

Detail of the Duomo

The Construction

Milan's Duomo is a massive construction worked on over four centuries by the best craftsmen and architects of their day. Surprisingly the church was completed in a more or less homogenous style – Italy's only Gothic cathedral. The first stone was laid in 1386 by the Duke of Milan, Gian Galeazzo Visconti, as an offering for an heir. The medieval management company founded to oversee the project, the Veneranda Fabbrica del Duomo, is responsible for the cathedral to this day. Canals were constructed to transport building materials, including marble from quarries on Lake Maggiore. The high altar was consecrated in 1418 by Pope Martin V but the façade was not completed until 1813 when Napoleon demanded it be ready for his coronation.

7 Roof Terraces

One of the highlights of any visit to Milan is a wander amid the soaring white pinnacles and statues on the cathedral's marble terraces. Take the lift, or walk up the steps; follow the signs for the roof (Salita alle terrazze). On a clear day, there are fantastic views over the rooftops of Milan to the Alps.

8 The Sundial

Just inside the main entrance is a sundial lined with zodiac signs. When installed in 1786, a ray of sunlight marked noon but it is no longer accurate because of changes in the Earth's rotation.

9 La Madonnina

The Madonnina, or Little Madonna, is the gilded statue perched right on the very top of the cathedral, and stands 108-m (354-ft) above ground. The original statue was placed here in 1774, but was replaced in the 1960s.

10 Via Dolorosa

The most unusual exhibit is also the Duomo's newest. Tucked away beside the treasury is the controversial video installation by British artist Mark Wallinger. The screen shows Zeffirelli's Jesus of Nazareth with 90 per cent of the image blacked out and no sound.

TOP 10 Verona

Some 20 km west of Lake Garda, Verona is probably best known as the setting for William Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, but it was also one of the most important Roman towns in northern Italy and flourished in its Renaissance heyday under the della Scala family for over a century. On the main communication links between central Italy and northern Europe, Verona has always been a prosperous place and the town centre, nestling in a bend of the River Adige, is a rich patchwork of buildings from different eras.

2 Casa di Giulietta

This 13th-century palazzo (below) was drawn out of anonymity when tourist officials added a balcony to meet the demands of tourists. Fondling the right breast of the statue of Juliet in the courtyard will supposedly bring you a new lover.

3 Castelvecchio

The Castelvecchio is a severe red brick fortress with swallowtail battlements which extend across the river on the fortified bridge, the Ponte Scaligero. The stronghold was commissioned in 1354 by Cangrande II and now holds a worthwhile museum of sculpture and art.

1 The Duomo

A pretty porch is centred on the partly striped façade of the Romanesque cathedral designed by the architect Sanmicheli. The Gothic interiors contain lovely frescoes.

4 Sant'Anastasia

Verona's pink-hued marble softens the lines of the interior (below) of this Gothic church and acts as a backdrop for Pisanello's fresco St George Preparing to Save the Maiden in the chapel to the right of the altar.

The Verona Card is a good value pass (€10 a day, €15 for three days). It includes public transport, entrance to museums and churches.

5 Torre dei Lamberti
 Standing 840-m (276-ft) high in Piazza delle Erbe, this brick tower (left) was built between 1172 and 1463. Catch the lift or climb the 368 steps up to the top for views over the rooftops of Verona.

9 San Zeno Maggiore
 Located west of the Arena is the Romanesque masterpiece of San Zeno Maggiore. The façade is centred by the “wheel-of-fortune” window and framed by a slender bell tower. Renaissance frescoes decorate the interior and Mantegna’s striking Madonna and Saints adorns the altar.

10 Teatro Romano
 Left abandoned for several centuries, this impressive theatre (right) was excavated in the 18th century and partly reconstructed. It is now a striking backdrop for many concerts and shows.

6 Piazza delle Erbe
 Once the site of the Roman Forum, then a market in the Middle Ages, this bustling square (above) is lined by civic institutions such as the Casa dei Mercanti and the Palazzo del Comune plus various palaces, including the Della Scala Case Mazzanti.

7 The Arena
 Every summer Verona’s immense Roman amphitheatre becomes the stage for epic productions of popular operas – Verdi’s Aida is always included. The 15,000-seat arena has a wonderful atmosphere.

8 San Fermo
 This is two churches in one: Dominicans built a simple lower church to house the remains of saints Fermo and Rustico, and a splendid upper church for worship.

Romeo and Juliet

Shakespeare’s tale of star-crossed lovers was probably based on a novel first published in 1530 by Luigi da Porto. There is little proof that the story is anything more than fiction, although Verona was famous for feuding families and records show Capuleti (Capulet) and Montecchi (Montague) families at the time of Bartolomeo I della Scala. Evidently, sights such as Romeo’s house and Juliet’s house and tomb are a result of local opportunism.

Note that most sights are either closed on Monday mornings or open at 1:30 pm.

TOP 10 Centro Lago and its Villages

The point where the two branches of southern Lake Como meet is known as Centro Lago. Pretty lakeside towns, glittering water, mountain views and splendid villas with luxurious gardens conspire to steal your heart. The surrounding mountains and lake water combine to create a temperate almost Mediterranean-like climate. Three villages form a triangle across the waters with sleepy Varenna to the east, sporty Menaggio to the west and beautiful Bellagio, the most famous of all, to the south on the tip of the promontory.

1 Villa Serbelloni, Bellagio

The lovely gardens at Villa Serbelloni are quieter than many, and while the terracing, grottoes and statuary equal its contemporaries, the views of the lake are unrivalled. The gardens can only be visited on a guided tour.

2 San Giacomo, Bellagio

In the square at the top of Bellagio, the church of San Giacomo is a wonderful example of local 12th-century Romanesque architecture. The interior of the church is rich with mosaics and home to a splendid 16th-century altar.

3 Pescallo

Over the eastern side of the Bellagio promontory, the tiny fishing hamlet of Pescallo (above) is a hidden delight. There is nothing better than sitting in the shade and enjoying the lake from the waterside café.

4 Villa Carlotta, Tremezzo

Best reached by boat to its own landing stage and then up the imposing scissored-staircase, the white Neo-Classical Villa Carlotta (above) boasts some of the finest gardens on the lake.

5 Menaggio
 Located near the Swiss border, Menaggio (above) is the the perfect base to enjoy Lake Como as well as the nearby golf course, hiking and cycle routes.

6 Villa del Balbianello, Lenno

Perched on a lush wooded promontory on the western shore, the luxurious terraced gardens of Villa del Balbianello (centre) offer breathtaking views over neighbouring Isola Comacina and the centre of the lake.

7 Castello di Vezio, Varenna

A short and steep 20-minute walk up the mountain behind Varenna takes you to the ruins of this 17th-century castle with spectacular views, a pleasant café and bird-of-prey displays on weekends.

8 Shopping in Bellagio

Bellagio's stepped alleyways and main Via Garibaldi (left) offer a host of goodies from top-label clothes to jewellery and shoes. Carefully crafted local leather, wood and lacework are among the many other delights that are on offer.

9 Varenna

Enchanting Varenna (right) has villas with pretty gardens, a ruined castle and a maze of cobbled streets to explore. Its sleepy waterfront is the perfect spot to simply unwind.

Lake Ferries

By far the best way to explore Lake Como is by boat. Ferries, hydrofoils and cruises crisscross between shores ensuring connections to all destinations. Services are easy to use with information available at tourist offices, the information booths on landing stages and at www.navigazione.it. Tickets are good value and slightly cheaper if bought before boarding; day passes are also available. Sailings become less frequent during low season.

10 Monte San Prino

Offering stunning views over Lake Como and the Alps beyond, Monte San Prino is a steep three-hour hike from Bellagio along a well-kept track. The tourist office has route maps.

TOP 10 Bergamo

Nestled at the foot of the Alps, midway between lakes Como and Garda, this wealthy city has a long history. Conquerors, including Romans, French, Austrians and, most notably, the Venetians – who ruled for 300 years until the end of the 18th century – have left a mix of influences. The ancient upper town, Città Alta, is a tranquil warren of cobbled streets surrounded by impressive walls while the lower town, Città Bassa, is a patchwork of elegant 19th-century boulevards, imposing civic buildings and medieval lanes.

Piazza Vecchia 1

Guarded by the 52-m (170-ft) high bell tower, this square in the heart of the upper town is lined with restaurants, with a library at one end facing the impressive Palazzo della Ragione.

2 Santa Maria Maggiore and Cappella Colleoni

The fabulously over-the-top Baroque interiors of the church are a taster for the extravagant funerary chapel next door. The Renaissance excess of coloured marble (above) holds the tombs of a Venetian mercenary and his 15-year-old daughter.

3 Shopping

Pedestrianised Via XX Settembre in the lower town is the best place to head for clothes and shoe stores. The upper town also has a good selection of boutiques (below) and gourmet delicatessens, although prices are not cheap.

Many shops in Città Alta are closed on Sunday and Monday mornings and many also close for lunch from 1–3pm.

4 Palazzo della Ragione

The elegant medieval arcaded building (above) dominating Piazza Vecchia dates back to the 12th century. The old courthouse and council room is topped with a bas-relief of the symbol of Venice, St Mark's lion.

5 Funicular

Trundling up the hill in a little two-car funicular railway (below) through the ornate gardens of the city's splendid villas is the perfect way to arrive in Città Alta.

6 Teatro Sociale

Tucked away behind an often-closed door, this impressive three-tiered wooden theatre dating from 1807 had been unused since 1929. It has recently been overhauled to once again host works of theatre.

Arlecchino

According to tradition, Arlecchino – or Harlequin – the dull-witted clown in love with Colombina in Commedia del Arte shows hails from Bergamo. The improvised popular theatre originated in Italy in the 16th century and the acrobatic servant figure, commonly depicted wearing multi-coloured diamond-patterned tights, has always been played with the gruff drawling Bergamo accent in Italy.

7 The Rocca

The Scala del Condannato (Prisoner's Staircase) inside the Rocca leads to the Museum of History with a well-presented collection of photographs, weapons and medals.

8 GAMEC

Housed in a spacious 15th-century palazzo, Bergamo's contemporary art gallery has a small but permanent collection of modern art. It is best known for its excellent temporary exhibitions.

The Walls

The high 16th-century walls (right) are dotted with imposing gateways. The wide leafy avenues tracing the fortifications offer glorious views over to the Alps.

10 Museo Donizettiano

Curio-lovers will be thrilled by the museum's collection of letters, music scores, instruments and the personal effects of Bergamo's famous composer of melodramatic opera, Gaetano Donizetti (1797–1848).

Bus 1 is a useful link between Bergamo airport, the train station, the lower funicular station and Colle Aperto in the upper town.

TOP 10 Lake Idro and the Valvestino

Stretching up from Gargnano on the western shore of Lake Garda, switchback roads transport you to a quieter world. The Valvestino is an isolated, mountainous area of hamlets and small cattle farms stretching from Lake Garda to Lake Idro. Communication only really began in the 1960s when hydroelectric works improved the roads and opened the countryside up to the outside world. Surrounded by wooded slopes, Lake Idro is popular for fishing, whilst the afternoon breeze makes sailing and windsurfing popular too.

1 Idro
The main village on Lake Idro is located at the southern end and divided by the River Chiese (main image). Idro is a small collection of houses, some basic shops, holiday facilities and a tourist office.

2 Ponte Caffero
This small settlement (above) at the northern end of Lake Idro once marked the border with Austria until 1918; now the frontier is simply from the province of Lombardy to Trento.

3 Vesta
A little hamlet on the eastern side of Lake Idro, Vesta has a few holiday houses and a gravel beach. It is the starting point for various hiking and cycling trails into the hills.

4 Lake Valvestino
A fjord-like slip of water formed by damming the River Toscolano in 1960, Lake Valvestino (below) is surrounded by steep wooded slopes. An idyllic area of mountains, meadows and wild flowers, it is perfect for walking and cycling.

5 Gargnano

This waterside village (above) is a delightful corner of Lake Garda, surprisingly ignored by tourist crowds. It has a string of Liberty villas and a few pretty harbours below olive and lemon groves.

6 Bagòss Carnival

The ancient traditions of the Bagòss carnival are still celebrated in Bagolino and Ponte Caffaro before Lent, when costumed dancers take to the streets.

7 Sentiero dei Contrabbandieri

The "Smugglers' Path" is a spectacular route (above) for experienced climbers along narrow ledges and sheer rock faces with views.

8 Canoeing, Lake Idro

Lake Idro's placid waters are ideal for novice canoeists. And for those who want their water a little whiter, there are nearby sections of the River Chiese here that have been used for national level canoeing championships.

9 Hiking and Trekking

This is a fantastic region for hiking and trekking: there are paths for all abilities, unspoiled nature and fabulous views. Gargnano and Idro tourist offices have details of walks (see p105) as does the website – www.lagodidro.it.

Bagòss Cheese

The people of these valleys have traditionally led the tough life of subsistence-level cattle farming. The seasons would be marked by the cows being moved from winter to summer pastures. A typical product of this region is the hard, strong tasting Bagoss cheese, made with partially skimmed cows' milk. After careful preparation by hand, the cheeses are put aside for three years to mature, during which time they are scraped, oiled and turned at regular intervals.

10 Bagolino

The lovely village of Bagolino (right) is the star turn in these parts – a jumble of medieval buildings with stone porticoes and archways, presided over by the church of San Giorgio with its slender bell tower.

TOP 10 Sirmione and Southern Lake Garda

The rolling hills around the southern section of Lake Garda are carpeted by olive groves and vineyards. This is the region's most popular lake, complete with ancient Roman remains, medieval villages and Venetian fortresses. The blue waters backed by mountain peaks and the warm Mediterranean climate are bewitching. Poking into the lake the tiny village of Sirmione is the main attraction here, with wonderfully located Roman ruins and its own natural spa.

Down a lane at the southern end of the village is the 15th-century church (below, detail) of Santa Maria Maggiore with an arcaded portico built using recycled Roman masonry. Inside, the church has one central nave.

Grotte di Catullo, Sirmione 4

Perched at the very tip of the Sirmione promontory, the open-air ruins of a large 1st-century AD Roman villa (right) stand among olive trees, lavender and rosemary bushes. A delightful spot with glorious views, although the links with the poet Catullus are unproved.

2 The Lido delle Bionde, Sirmione

On the eastern side of the peninsula, just below the Grotte, white slabs of rock lead into the clean waters of the lake. Here, the beach, or lido, offers the best place for a dip.

3 Peschiera del Garda

This old military town has imposing 16th-century Venetian fortifications. It is the main rail hub for the lake and close to the area's theme parks.

5 Bardolino
This attractive village (above) on the south-eastern side of the lake gave its name to the local red wine that accompanies the lake-fish antipasti so well. Try a glass or two in the many cantines, or bistros, here.

6 Rocca Scaligera, Sirmione
The Rocca, a 13th-century moated fort (left), guards the land entrance to Sirmione with turrets and swallowtail battlements. Climb up the steps to the towers and enjoy the views across the lake.

7 San Pietro in Mavino, Sirmione
Like so many properties in Sirmione, this little Romanesque church was built reusing Roman blocks. The frescoes (above) inside date from the 13th to 16th centuries.

8 Lazise
Lazise's (below) role as an important Venetian port is borne witness by the villages' remaining walls and the porticoed customs house by the little port. These days it is quieter than many of the larger resorts.

9 Desenzano
Lake Garda's main town, Desenzano, is on the Milan-Verona train line as well as just off the A4 motorway. The attractive town centre bustles with residents. The castle and old harbour are worth a visit.

10 Villa Romana, Desenzano
A short walk from Desenzano's harbour stands Villa Romana, the remains of a late-Roman villa, once the hub of a large agricultural estate here. Look out for the beautiful mosaic floors.

Southern Garda Wines
The southern end of Garda produces some of the lakes' better quality wines. Best known are the fruity Bardolino reds from the south-eastern corner, while the southern end produces very drinkable white Lugana, Garda Classico and Custoza vintages. Red Valpolicella and white Soaves are made near the eastern shore. The southwest corner produces a light rosé.

One of the best ways to explore this region is by bicycle. There are numerous hire outfits and lakeside cycle paths.

TOP 10 Moments in History

1 1st Century AD: Lake Como Flourishes

In the 1st century AD, the peace and security established by the Roman emperor Augustus and his successors enabled northern Italian communities to flourish. Large agricultural estates were established and holiday villas were built around the lakes by residents of Bergamo, Brescia and Milan.

2 313 AD: Edict of Milan

Emperor Constantine issued the Edict of Milan in 313, granting Christians freedom of worship. Milan became a centre of Christianity under its charismatic bishop, Ambrogio, who established numerous churches.

3 773 AD: Charlemagne Declared King of the Franks and Lombards

With the fall of Rome, Northern European tribes swept down and sacked the lands without leaders. The Lombards established themselves at Pavia but were defeated by the Frankish king, Charlemagne. His rule brought about stability and peace to Europe.

4 1176 AD: The Lombard League Defeats "Barbarossa"

After numerous attempts to conquer northern Italy, Emperor Frederick I – or Barbarossa – was defeated by an alliance of city states including Milan, Como, Cremona, Mantua, Bergamo, Brescia and Verona and supported by the pope. The alliance was established to stop Frederick I's influence over Italy.

5 11th–15th Centuries: Renaissance City States

From the 11th century the power of the city-states in northern Italy was unrivalled: the della Scala family ruled Verona and its territories; the Gonzagas ruled Mantova; the Visconti and later the Sforza ruled Milan; and Venice was a republican city-state. Gradually power was polarized and, after the Treaty of Lodi in 1454, northern Italy was dominated by the Sforzas in Milan and the Venetian Republic.

6 1559: The Spanish Grants the Duchy of Milan

Marking the beginning of over 300 years of foreign rule, Milan fell into the hands of the Spanish, who did little to solve the economic and social problems of this period.

7 1805: Napoleon Crowned King of Italy in Milan

Having invaded Austrian-ruled northern Italy in 1796 and ending 1100 years of the Venetian Republic, Napoleon took Milan and swept down the peninsula. His 20-year

Charlemagne, King of the Franks

reign had profound effects in Italy, which prepared the ground for the independence movement.

8 1861: Vittorio Emanuele I Crowned King of Italy

Lombards paid a high price for a united Italy. The Battle of Solferino, near Lake Garda, ended Austrian occupation with a partial but bloody victory. Bergamo provided 1,000 volunteers for Garibaldi's army of red shirts who sailed to Sicily and then fought back up the peninsula, securing territories for the new kingdom.

Painting of the Battle of Solferino

9 1919: Italy Gains South Tyrol from Austria

The border region with Austria had been in dispute since the new Kingdom of Italy defined its northern borders in 1866. The Allies confirmed that the modern-day areas of Alto-Adige and Trentino would be ceded to Italy for their part in the World War I.

10 1945: Mussolini's Capture

On 28 April 1945, Benito Mussolini and his mistress Claretta Petacci were executed by the Resistance in the village of Mezzegra on Lake Como. They were captured at Dongo the day before, trying to escape to Switzerland. Their bodies were taken to Milan where they were strung up in Piazza Loreto as proof of the dictator's demise.

This 7-km (4-mile) mountain-route takes you through the wooded Val Cannobio, via rugged stone hamlets to Malesco. Take the bus from Cannobio town to the start point at Cursolo, and you can pick up the train at Malesco, which is a stop-off point on the Domodossola – Locarno line (see p62).

2 Sacro Monte, Orta San Giulio

Short but steep mule tracks above Orta wind up through woodland to the 21 chapels of Sacro Monte. It is a great spot for a picnic, with lovely views of the lake and Isola San Giulio (see p12).

3 Orrido di Sant'Anna, Lake Maggiore

This trail (8 km/5 miles there and back) runs from Cannobio along the banks of a river, which widens to become surprisingly dramatic. At the end you reach the church

8 The Lungolago – Riva del Garda to Torbole, Lake Garda

An easy 4-km (2-mile) walk linking two settlements at the north of Lake Garda, via beaches, parkland and promenades. This blustery corner of the lake is popular with windsurfers, so you will see plenty of sporting action along the way.

A beach at Lungolago

9 Monte Isola, Lake Iseo
Explore the circumference of the traffic-free island (15 km/ 9 miles if you take paths rather than the more direct road route), or shorten the walk by picking up the ferry. You can take a detour to the hilltop Santuario della Madonna della Ceriola for mountain and lake vistas.

10 Monte Baldo, Lake Garda
Hike on established trails to Monte Baldo, above the picturesque lakeside town of Malcésine. The cable car, which does the 1,600 m (5,250 ft) in ten minutes, can save you either the upward or downward journey, depending on how energetic you are feeling (see p57).

1 Kayaking
Paddling along the waters is the perfect way to get a closer view of the lakeside villas or to appreciate the soaring mountain peaks. Equipment can be hired on all the lakes but it is most easily available at the northern end of Lakes Garda and Como.

2 Horse Riding
Specialist companies arrange riding holidays in the area and tourist offices usually carry details of local companies. Many of the regions agriturismi have riding facilities and some arrange treks.

3 Paragliding
If you have a head for heights, floating off the sides of the mountains with great views over the waters is unmissable. Tandem and solo paragliding descents are organized from Monte Baldo above Lake Garda to Sasso del Ferro above Lake Maggiore as well as at centres on the lakes in between.

4 Sailing and Windsurfing
Watersports are on offer all around the lakes but certain spots have ideal conditions and are particularly well regarded – especially around Torbole on Lake Garda, Pino on Lake Maggiore and the northern end of Lake Como around Dervio. Even tiny Lake Iseo offers good facilities around Sarnico and Lovere.

5 Snowboarding
On the slopes around the lakes and the upper reaches of all the valleys there are pistes for snowboarding. The ski resorts in the Val Camonica, Valli d'Ossola, Monte Baldo, Mattone and around the north of Lake Garda are all good destinations.

6 Golf

TOP 10 Culinary Specialities

1 Polenta
This heavy but simple staple of corn meal or grits has nourished generations of northern Italians. Traditionally served up with donkey stew, veal or creamy cheese, it is cheap and filling. These days it is often left to cool, cut into slices and served up with lake fish or grilled vegetables.

2 Lake Fish
Tinca (tench), persico (perch) and luccio (pike) are three of the most common lake fish you will come across. They are white fish with delicate flavours that are frequently offered simply grilled or baked, although they can be served in many ways including marinated or as a filling for ravioli.

3 Grana Padano
Similar to Parmigiano Reggiano, Grana Padano is a hard cow's-milk cheese often served grated on the top of pasta or rice dishes. This cheese was reputedly first created by Cistercian monks in a monastery to the south of Milan in the Middle Ages. It must be made in the Po Valley of Lombardy to earn its DOC stamp of regional authenticity.

4 Casoncelli or Casonsei
Ravioli, or pasta parcels stuffed with sausage meat and cheese, are a speciality around the towns of Bergamo and Brescia and in their valleys. Usually freshly made, the filling starter is commonly served topped with melted butter and sage leaves (burro fuso) and a sprinkle of Grana Padano cheese.

5 Cassoeûla
The classic way to beat the cold, foggy nights of a Milanese winter is to indulge in a heavy cassoeûla. This hearty pork and sausage casserole includes cabbage and variations of many other winter vegetables. A legacy of the Spanish occupation of the region in the 16th century, it is rarely served in restaurants these days.

6 Taleggio
A mild creamy cheese from a valley of the same name located above Bergamo, Taleggio is traditionally made in large square blocks and often served melted on polenta. The consistency varies depending on the season: in the summer months it is harder and chalky, and in the winter, far more creamy.

Taleggio cheese

7 Gorgonzola

This blue veined cheese from the village of the same name just outside Milan comes in two varieties: hard, crumbly and strong (which is the version usually available outside Italy) and the milder, much creamier, so called "dolce" version. Often shortened to "Zola" on menus.

8 Cotoletta alla Milanese

One of the most ubiquitous dishes on menus in Milan is cotoletta alla Milanese. Lightly breadcrumbed veal cutlets are fried in butter and served with a squeeze of lemon. There is usually nothing else on the plate, so if you want a side order, ask for vegetables or salad separately.

Cotoletta alla Milanese

9 Missoltini

The classic dish of missoltini is served in many restaurants along Lake Como. Small shad are dried in the sun, pressed and then salted and preserved in oil. They are commonly offered as an antipasto although they can also be served with polenta.

10 Risotto alla Milanese

The extensive paddy fields to the south of Milan provide the city with the main ingredient for its signature dish. Creamy rice dishes are common in this region but this variation is traditionally infused with golden saffron and stock made from veal shanks (ossobuco).

TOP 10 Works of Art

1 Leonardo da Vinci's The Last Supper

Da Vinci's masterpiece lives up to the hype. The disciples' indignance and Christ's serenity as he announces that he will be betrayed by one of them is spell binding. Notice too humble details such as the knotted tablecloth and the metal plates reflecting those used by the monks in the refectory (see p93).

2 Andrea Mantegna's Dead Christ

Whether it is the perspective of this painting that pulls you in or the realism of the colouring, your eyes feel drawn to every wrinkle of the shroud. The sense of bereavement emanating from the work might stem from the fact that Mantegna's own son had recently died (see p93).

3 Raphael's Angel

Painted when Raphael was just 17 for San Nicolò da Tolentino in Umbria in 1501, the retablo was damaged by an earthquake and cut up. The 19th-century collector Paolo Tosio discovered this fragment for sale in Florence; another is on display in the Louvre and a third, in Naples.

3 Villa Carlotta
The romantic gardens of Villa Carlotta on Lake Como are a delightful mix of terraces, statues, fountains, staircases and splendid views. The spring flowering of 150 different species of rhododendrons and azaleas is a beautiful sight, as are the ancient cedars, sequoias and plane trees. The Japanese-inspired bamboo garden with rare species and calming waterfalls is a soothing retreat (see p22).

4 Villa del Balbianello
The approach from the water is unforgettable, with steps leading up a scissor staircase, past statues and topiary to the pretty panoramic loggia. The grounds here are a delightfully idiosyncratic blend of colourful flowery borders, geometrical hedges and huge oaks, cypresses and magnolias (see p23).

5 Villa Melzi
A short walk from Bellagio, Villa Melzi was one of the first gardens on the lakes to be designed in the informal English style, in 1808. The immaculate lawns stretch down to the water's edge with palms, cypresses and plane trees framing the wonderful views. 📍 Lungolaro Manzoni, Bellagio, Lake Como • Map N4 • 339 457 3838 • Open daily Apr–Oct: 9:30am–6:30pm • Adm

10 Villa Serbelloni

Commonly speculated to be the site of Pliny the Younger's Roman villa, the villa gardens are some of the quietest on the lakes. There are lovely views of the point where the three branches of Lake Como meet from the belvedere in the wooded upper garden. Near the house, the 18th-century formal section is split into curved terraces with topiary and statues (see p22).

A good outdoor bar-restaurant, weekend falconry displays, a fossil exhibition and some ghostly figures dotted around the grounds add to the fun (see p23).

8 Pizza and Gelati

Few kids will turn their nose up at food that they are allowed to eat with their fingers. On pizzas, margherita (mozerella and tomato) or marinara (tomato only) toppings should work for fussy eaters, while the more adventurous can have a field day with the myriad of other options. Gelati artigianali (homemade ice creams) fill the gaps between meals perfectly. 5 Boutiques

Lake Como's rarefied industry (see pp14–15) leads to displays of rack-upon-rack of colourful silk ties and scarves. Designs often follow the latest collections of top fashion designers that the silk factories are also working for. Check for origins as some cheaper goods are imported.

6 Wine Outlets

Low prices, expert advice and tasting sessions are offered at wine estates, cooperatives and agriturismos. The Denominazione di Origine Controllata e Garantita (DOCG) and Denominazione di Origine Controllata (DOC) names are Valcaleppio and Scanzo from around Bergamo; Valpolicello, Bardolino and Soave from near Lake Garda; plus Franciacorta's sparkling wines. Good drinkable wines are also made on the sunny slopes around all the lakes.

Lake Maggiore and Around

THE WESTERNMOST OF ITALY'S GREAT LAKES, Maggiore's proximity to the Alps and its temperate climate have made it a favourite retreat for holidaying northern Europeans for centuries. These conditions have also helped create Maggiore's biggest draw – its many luxuriant gardens. From the palm-tree lined promenades to the formal terraces of the Borromeo Islands, the Alpine gardens and the immaculate lawns of the Grand Hotels, Lake Maggiore is in bloom throughout the year. The mountains and valleys leading away from the turquoise water offer a myriad of sights and activities to complement lazy times by the lakeside. Just over Mount Mottarone, to the southwest, lie the tranquil and glittering waters of Lake Orta, the most westerly of the lakes, with one significant draw in the sun-kissed village of Orta San Giulio.

Wonderfully preserved, it enjoys a strategic position above the town of Angera, with extensive vistas across the southern reaches of the lake (see p64). 2 Lake Orta

Narrow little Lake Orta is a serene backwater in comparison with its neighbours although it too has been a tourist destination for several centuries. The northern tip is rather industrialized but the southern end of the lake is hardly touched. Frequently referred to as the “pearl” of the lake, Orta San Giulio, an enchanting village on the western shore, is one of the most lovely places in the whole region (see pp12–13).

3 Verbania

Halfway up on the western side of the lake, Verbania is a 20th-century renaming of the adjacent lakeside villages of Suna, Pallanza and Intra, although they retain very different identities. Intra is the transport hub for train, bus and cross-lake ferries. 5 Centovalli Railway

Opened in 1923, the 52-km (32-mile) stretch of railway between Domodossola in Italy and Locarno in Switzerland passes through craggy cliffs, wooded valleys, over vertiginous bridges and past half-forgotten villages, vineyards and waterfalls. The four tiny islands between Pallanza and Stresa are the main destination of most visitors to Lake Maggiore; only three are open to the public. Isola Bella (see pp8–9) is the most famous: an extraordinary Baroque creation of palace, lakeside grottoes and formal terraced gardens. Isola Madre is the largest island but

A highlight of any Lake Maggiore holiday, this splendid initiative is a combination of public transport using ferry and rail through both Italy and Switzerland. The trip can take from six hours to a couple of days with as many stops as you fancy. Included are a boat trip on Lake Maggiore, the Centovalli Railway between Locarno and Domodossola and a fast train back to the water (see p10).

9 Golfo Borromeo The Golfo Borromeo is a term used to describe the bulge on the western shore of the lake home to Maggiore's best-known towns and attractions. The popular resorts of Stresa and Baveno (see p64) face Verbania across the bay dotted with the three Borromeo Islands. Watercrafts shuttle between the shores and islands including the car-ferry across the lake to Laveno on the eastern shore (see p64).

A Day on the Lago Maggiore Express

Morning

Boarding the Lago Maggiore Express will mean a comfortable start from the Stresa landing stage with the 11:15am ferry heading for Locarno (see p65). You can have a three-course lunch on board (book before departure) and relax with a glass of wine as you pass the landmarks of the lake. Late Afternoon

Past the Isole di Brissago at the northern tip of Lake Maggiore, the elegant resort of Locarno is an inviting place to pass an hour or so wandering the cobble alleyways off Piazza Grande and relaxing with an ice cream at one of the pavement cafés before catching the 4:12pm train to Domodossola.

The breathtaking Centovalli Railway section of the trip offers magnificent panoramas as you pass through mountain crevices, ancient chestnut woods and over gravity-defying bridges before crossing the border back into Italy and arriving at the Italian town of Domodossola an hour and a half later. The town centre offers various traditional trattoria if you want an early dinner or perhaps just an aperitivo and a plateful of nibbles from one of the bars with outdoor seating. Lake Como and Around

THE THIRD LARGEST, AND THE DEEPEST OF ALL THE ITALIAN LAKES, Lake Como is 50 km (30 miles) long, 4.5 km (3 miles) across at its widest point and the southern section is divided into two branches. The lake is named after its main town at the southernmost tip but it is also known locally as Lario. Visitors have been flocking to these sapphire waters for centuries. In Roman times, both Pliny the Elder and the Younger had houses here and for the past 300 years, European aristocracy and industrialists have lined the shores with their villas. At the end of the 19th century, the Grand Tour encouraged elegant hotels, and these days the lake attracts a comfortable mixture of Italians and foreigners, holiday makers and glitterati.

1 Como Funicular

This quaint little funicular has been hauling passengers up the steep hill from Como to the village of Brunate since 1894. It passes through a tunnel and inches past resplendent villas and magnificent gardens on a one-rail system at an incline of 55 per cent, offering wonderful views of the lake and town on the way. At the top there are cafés, restaurants and the start of various signposted walks (see p14).

2 Villa Monastero, Varenna

As the name suggests, Villa Monastero was built on the site of a former monastery. Rebuilt as a holiday retreat in the 16th century, these days it is used as a conference centre. The gardens have an astounding collection of plant species, and are dotted with fountains, statues and temples. The villa has unrivalled views looking towards Pescallo on the Bellagio peninsula (see pp22–3). ☉ Via IV Novembre • Map N2 • Open mid-Mar–Apr & Oct: 10am–5pm; May–28 Sep: 9am–7pm • Adm • www.villamonastero.eu

3 Villa Carlotta, Tremezzo

In 1843, the impossibly romantic 16th-century Villa Carlotta was given by Princess Marianne of Nassau, wife of Albert of Prussia, to her daughter Carlotta as a wedding present. The Neo-Classical villa flaunts period interiors alongside paintings including, appropriately, Eros and Psyche by Francesco Hayez (1791–1882). The sweeping terraced gardens leading down to the waterfront are lush with a blaze of azaleas in spring as well as banks of camellias and ancient cedars and sequoias. ☉ Via Regina 2 • Map N3 • 0344 404 05 • Open daily mid-Mar & mid-Oct–mid-Nov: 10am–4pm (building is closed from noon–2pm), Apr–Sep: closes 6pm • Adm • www.villacarlotta.it

4 The Duomo, Como

This attractive cathedral, located in the centre of Como, is the happy result of changes in artistic styles in the 300 odd years it took for it to be completed. Its lofty dimensions and soaring arches are Medieval Gothic, the apses and tapestries inside are Renaissance and the 18th-century cupola topping the building is wonderfully Baroque. Dozens of colourful stained-glass windows brighten up the otherwise gloomy interior of the church; the oldest dates from the 15th century. Look out for the small frog carved in 1507 to the left of the north door, the Door of the Frog (see p14).

Artistic Visitors

For centuries, artists have sought inspiration in Lake Como. Liszt, Verdi, Rossini and Bellini composed here; writers such as Wordsworth, Byron and Shelley praised it highly, as did Stendhal and Matthew Arnold.

5 Isola Comacina Just off Argegno on the western shore, Isola Comacina is the only island on the lake, and one with a significant history. It was a pre-Roman settlement, a refuge for local warring factions in the Middle Ages and, finally, sacked by Como in 1169. San Giovanni is the only standing church here but there are the ruins of at least five more scattered around.

6 Villa del Balbianello, Lenno

This 18th-century villa enjoys one of the best positions on the lake with breathtaking views framed by the Grigne mountains. The house holds the collections of the last owner, the Italian explorer and mountaineer, Guido Monzino, the first Italian to climb Everest. The lush gardens, a testimony to the temperate climate, cascade down the terracing to the water. Scenes from Star Wars Episode II were filmed here in 2000 and Casino Royale in 2006 (see p23).

7 Villa Serbelloni, Bellagio Built in 1605, Villa Serbelloni, set in extensive grounds on the hilltop above Bellagio, is now a conference centre for the Rockefeller Foundation. Guided tours take visitors around the immaculate terraced gardens that offer panoramic views of all three branches of the lake, quiet grottoes and host of cypress and olive trees. Note the nearby hotel with a similar name (see p22).

8 Abbazia di Piona Perched on a peninsula on the upper reaches of the eastern shores of Como, this 12th-century monastery sits on the remains of a 7th-century church. The peaceful cloisters are the centre of the complex and the stone columns are covered with a profusion of carvings. The Cistercian monks who now look after the place make and sell a potent herb liqueur by the main gate. 📍 Colico

Chapel, Sacro Monte di Ossuccio

9 Sacro Monte di Ossuccio
 Nestling among olive groves with great views over the waters, this is one of nine UNESCO World Heritage Sacri Monti (Sacred Mountains) in northern Italy. A world away from the crowds, the series of fourteen chapels leading up to the sanctuary tells Bible stories with tableaux of life-size wooden statues. Seventeenth-century Franciscan monks created the site over 70 years to educate locals in teachings of what is now called Catholicism rather than the Protestant Reformation ideas sweeping the region at the time. 📍 Ossuccio • Map N3 • 0344 55 211 • www.comunicare.it/luoghi/luoghi/ossuccio.htm

A Neo-Classical building with wonderful gardens and a lake, the villa was built in 1810 as the summer residence of Francesco Melzi d'Eril, vice president of the Italian Republic under Napoleon. The estate includes an orangery, banks of rhododendrons and azaleas as well as a Japanese garden. 📍 Lungolaro Manzoni, Loppia • Map N3 • 339 457 3838 • Gardens open daily Apr–Oct: 9am–6pm • Adm • www.giardinidivillamelzi.it

A Day on Lake Como

Morning

➤ After breakfast at Como, head down to the jetties in front of Piazza Cavour to catch the 10am ferry service up the lake. Settle down for a 2-hour cruise along the western branch of the lake, pulling in and out of picturesque villages on both shores. At the private jetty for Villa Carlotta (see p71) hop off and head up to one of the most fabulous properties on the lake. If you are interested in the 19th-century interiors in the villa, pop inside, otherwise wander at will through the heady and luxuriant gardens. Stop for lunch at the Orangery Café or the picnic spot if you came prepared.

Afternoon

➤ After lunch catch the fast boat over to Bellagio, (see pp22–3) just 6 minutes away, to wander the steep, cobbled lanes for a bit of shopping. There are no bargains here but browsing the selection of silk goods, wood carvings and gourmet offerings is a fun way to explore the village. If you have got the energy, one more quick ferry trip will get you away from the crowds; catch the Centro Lago car-ferry service for 15 minutes over to Varenna. Turn right off the jetty and wander along the waterfront walkway to the tiny harbour, outdoor cafés and homemade ice cream shop. Relax and enjoy the views of the lake and late-afternoon sun. Catch the express boat service (1-hour) to be back in Como in time for dinner (Note that you might need to cross to Menaggio first, depending on the timetable).

Bergamo, Brescia and Lake Iseo

BERGAMO STANDS NORTHEAST OF MILAN at the foothills of the Alps guarding northern Italy's main east-west roads and railway links. An immediately likeable and prosperous place, Bergamo is best known for its attractive upper town, perched atop a hill. Lake Iseo, 20 km (12 miles) away, is one of the lesser-visited but prettiest of the smaller lakes in the region, with the attractive glacier valley of Val Camonica stretching up to Switzerland behind. Bergamo's closest rival in prosperity, industry, football and just about everything else is the historic town of Brescia, 43 km (27 miles) east. The relationship between the two has never been easy, but for a visitor the experiences are very different, with Brescia's Roman heritage complementing

Bergamo's medieval splendours. On summer weekends and during August, both towns empty out to the lakes and surrounding mountains.

1 San Vigilio, Bergamo

The tiny neighbourhood of San Vigilio, at the very top of Bergamo's upper town, has always been a half-forgotten corner of the city. At the beginning of the 19th century, a cable car (see p25) was opened to attract daytrippers to the neighbourhood. Little has since changed. There are a few restaurants and a bar and spectacular views across elaborate gardens. The ruins of the castle here have been turned into a park with subterranean Venetian defence tunnels to be explored. Map D3

3 Monte Isola, Lake Iseo

Rising up out of the middle Lake Iseo, Monte Isola is Europe's largest lake island. A wooded plug of rock, 3-km (2-miles) long and 600-m (1,970-ft) high, it only has a couple of villages and is topped by the Sanctuary of Madonna della Ceriola. Bike hire is available and there are good paths for walking or cycling. It is a popular Italian holiday spot and lunch spot with restaurants dotted along the shoreline, a couple of campsites and some low-key hotels.

4 Funicular, Bergamo

Bergamo boasts two separate funicular systems. The best known trundles from Via Vittorio Emanuele II in the lower town through the city walls to Piazza Mercato delle Scarpe in the upper town. Completed in 1887, it covers 85 m (280 ft) with a maximum incline of 52 per cent. The lesser-known route runs from Porta Sant'Alessandro in the upper town to San Vigilio, Bergamo's highest point. Since 1912 it has been carrying people up to the restaurants, cafés and the ruined castle on a 90-m (280-ft) long track at an incline of 22 per cent (see p25).

Treno Blu

During summer on Sundays, a privately-run train leaves Bergamo station for the scenic trip to Paratico on tiny Lake Iseo. Boats connect here to take you over to Iseo and the panoramic Monte Isola. Details are available from tourist offices or at www.ferrovieturistiche.it

5 Rock Art, Capo di Ponte

The Val Camonica, north of Lake Iseo, is littered with pre-historic rock carvings spanning several thousand years. Recognized as a UNESCO World Heritage Site, the Parco Nazionale delle Incisioni Rupestri (National Rock Carving Park; follow the yellow signs from the main road) is an open-air site with carvings recording local life over a 1,000 years of civilization up to the Bronze Age in the 4th century. Stick figures show religious ceremonies, agricultural work, jewellery and even a cart and a blacksmith (see p44).

6 Museo Donizettiano, Bergamo

Fans of the opera composer Gaetano Donizetti, born in Bergamo in 1797, should visit this museum illustrating his life and works. Donizetti is best known for his melodramatic piece Lucia di Lammermoor, but comic pieces like Don Pasquale also made him popular. The museum is housed in an upper town palazzo with a entrance courtyard and 19th-century frescoes. Original letters, instruments and scores belonging to the maestro are on display (see p25).

Santa Maria Maggiore

7 Santa Maria Maggiore, Bergamo

This church on the Piazza del Duomo in Bergamo's upper town is a trio of delights. The outside is a good example of Lombard Romanesque with a Gothic portal guarded by marble lions while the 16th-century interior is a Baroque extravaganza of gilded stucco and frescoed decoration. Next door, the Renaissance funerary chapel for Bartolomeo Colleoni, a Venetian mercenary and his daughter, is an array of pink and white marble, frescoes and bas reliefs (see p24).

8 Roman Sites, Brescia

The 1st-century monastery of Santa Giulia, now the Museo della Città, was built on the residential area of the Roman town of Brixia – modern-day Brescia. The remains of Roman villas have been excavated and are on view in situ with lovely mosaic floors and wonderfully preserved frescoed walls. 9 Cruises, Lake Iseo
To complement the regular ferry service around Lake Iseo, there are a number of round-the-lake cruises that run in the summer months. Typically, the cruises last an hour or two and circumnavigate Monte Isola and the two tiny private islands on the lake – San Paolo and Loreto. Other options involve taking in the higher or the lower reaches of the lake. There is even a nighttime cruise with dinner and drinks on board. ☉ www.barcaioli-monteisola.it; www.navigazione lagoiseo.it

10 Piazza Vecchia, Bergamo
The impressive Piazza Vecchia is all that an Italian town square should be. Restaurants and cafés line the edges while the Neo-Classical Palazzo della Ragione stands solidly at one end facing the medieval Palazzo della Ragione at the other. There is a fountain at the centred square and the 17th-century Torre Civica (or Campanone) towers over the ensemble, chiming away every half hour. ☉ Torre Civica: Map D3; Open Oct: Tue–Fri 9:30am–7pm, Sat & Sun 9:30am–9:30pm; Nov–Feb: Tue–Sun 9:30am–5:30pm, Sat & Sun 9:30am–4:30pm • Torre Civica: Adm

Half-a-Day in Città Alta, Bergamo

Morning

☉ Grab a table in the sun in Piazza Vecchia for a late breakfast or morning coffee and simply take in the splendour of the square. The main sights of the city are a stone's throw away behind the Palazzo della Ragione, in Piazza Duomo. After your fill of Baroque exuberance in Santa Maria Maggiore and the Cappella Colleoni, if you have a head for heights, climb up the Torre Civica for panoramic views and ear-splitting chimes. From the square, bear left along via Colleoni towards the Cittadella, perhaps popping into the Teatro Sociale, at number 4, or any of the boutiques or delicatessens that line the route. Dive down any of the cobbled lanes that take your fancy; it will be easy to make your way back.

Afternoon

☉ Just off Colle Aperto, through Porta San'Alessandro on the right, is the funicular up to San Vigilio (see p77); make sure you have change for a ticket from the machine. At the top, wander along the road in either direction for sweeping views over Bergamo and the plains. Visit the park in the old castle ruins for a little shade. The fresh wood-oven pizzas and delicious local dishes at San Vigilio (see p81) are an excellent choice for lunch. Take in the lovely views over the valley, and plan a route to walk down through Porta San Giacomo to the lower town.

Lake Garda and Around

LAKE GARDA IS AN AREA OF CONTRASTS. The terrain of the northern section is more rugged, with deep water and strong winds that make this part of the lake ideal for watersports. To the south, the edges of the lake are gentler, with stony beaches and pretty vine-covered hills with lemon and olive groves. Garda is the most easterly of the main Italian lakes and the largest, measuring about 51 km (31 miles) in length. The water is the cleanest and the temperature far milder and more Mediterranean in nature than it should be for its latitude. This adds up to make Lake Garda the most visited of the Italian Lakes; the waterside roads and villages can get thoroughly jammed in season but further afield there are idyllic valleys to explore as well as the appealing historic town of Verona.

1 Sirmione

Jutting out from the southern shore on a little promontory, Sirmione is a pretty, historical town perfect for day trips, although it is exceptionally busy in summer. The natural spa here, originating from the Boiola spring, made this a popular spot in Roman times. The town's main sight is the impressive Rocca Scaligera, a medieval castle dating back to the 13th century (see p29).

2 Lake Ledro

In peaceful contrast to its busy neighbour, Lake Ledro is a little mountain tarn 8 km (5 miles) from the northwestern end of Lake Garda. Activities here include fishing, watersports such as sailing and canoeing, and biking. Riva del Garda, Piazza III Novembre

Rocca Scaligera, Sirmione

3 Riva del Garda

Located at the northern tip of the lake, Riva is sheltered under the overhanging cliffs of Monte Rochetta. One of the larger towns on the waters, Riva was a fashionable resort at the beginning of the 20th century. It was under Austro-Hungarian rule and only passed into Italian hands at the end of World War I. The large lakefront piazza is framed on three sides by 14th-century porticoed buildings, behind which the town's walls contain the narrow streets of the pedestrianized quarter. The moated castle, or Rocca, to the east marks the beginning of Riva's gardens and long stretch of beaches. It is also the centre for various sports activities on the lake. ☎ Tourist Office: Largo Medaglie d'Oro 5 • Map S2 • 0464 554 444 • www.gardatrentino.it

5 Verona Famously the setting for Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, this historic town, 20 km (12 miles) from the lake, is one of the most elegant places in the region, boasting an attractive pedestrianized centre. Spectacular Roman ruins such as the Arena nestle among the cobbled lanes cheek-by-jowl with medieval palaces, a magnificent castle in the Castelvecchio and a tempting array of trattorias and wine bars (see pp20-21).

6 Gargnano This small strip of a village is an absolute joy: there is nothing much in the centre except a pair of tiny harbours, a church and some waterside houses but the atmosphere is delightful. D.H. Lawrence wrote Twilight in Italy here in 1912 and Mussolini stayed in the Villa Feltrinelli to the north of town for the last few months of his Salò Republic. Every

7 Salò Salò is a lovely place, a bustling workaday town in a beautiful location on the western shore of the lake. The streets leading back from the broad waterfront are good for shopping and the Renaissance Duomo rewards a brief visit. Elegant old palazzi line the streets, while a multitude of sleek yachts bob in the large marina. more noble buildings and the church has porticoed views. It is a good base for trekking in summer and skiing in winter but most people visit for the Lenten Carnival when dancers and musicians in traditional costumes and masks take to the ancient streets.

9 Limone sul Garda

Until the 1930s, Limone, set on a narrow strip of land at the northwestern end of the lake, was only reachable by boat. It survived on fishing, olive and citrus fruit production. There is one lemonaia (lemon frame) left in the town as a reminder of its livelihood through the centuries.

Limone sul Garda

10 Malcesine

Malcesine, on the eastern shore of Lake Garda, has an appealing knot of cobbled lanes, a little harbour, a castle and the natural playground that is Monte Baldo above. In high season, the narrow streets are packed with visitors exploring the 13th-century Castello Scaligera (where Goethe was imprisoned for spying in 1786) or queueing to take the state-of-the-art cable car up Monte Baldo (see p50) for magnificent views of the lake.

A Day Trip from Salò to Riva

Morning

Salò is a good base for visiting the different sections of Lake Garda. Leave the comfortable lakeside town on the 11:30am fast boat service to Riva del Garda (see p85). There will be a supplement to the normal return ferry price, available at the landing stage. The boat will pull in at the neighbouring town of Gardone for views of more Liberty villas and Grand Hotels. The following stop won't be for over half an hour as you cruise up the lake to the more rugged terrain where the mountains drop steeply down to the water. From your vantage point on board, check out pretty but crowded Malcesine on the eastern shore, and then the popular resort of Limone back on the west. Hop off the boat at Riva and explore the town centre, comparing the Teutonic touches to the distinctly more "Italian" atmosphere you left further down the lake. Il Gallo (see p91) in the shaded porticoes just back from the main waterfront square is a good choice for lunch.

Afternoon

After lunch, wander around the grounds of the Rocca or visit the Museo Civico inside the building. You can also head west through the gardens to the beaches for a dip in the cool waters of the lake. The return boat leaves at 4:15pm to whisk you back to Salò along the same route, leaving you with just about enough energy to explore the rest of the lake the next day.

Milan and Southern Lombardy

Milan surprises visitors with a rich fabric of historical treasures juxtaposed with its current incarnation as a fashion centre. Outside the city, the flat agricultural lands defined by the River Po and its irrigation canals are peppered with ancient hamlets, monasteries and farmsteads. Several towns stretch across the plains with a life of their own and a cultural heritage second to none. The Carthusian monastery just outside the town is the apex of Pavia's monuments, while Cremona lives off its 17th-century fame as a centre for violin-making and has an attractive Romanesque cathedral. But Mantova is the most impressive of the three, with much remaining from when the town was a centre of Renaissance art and architecture during the 14th to 17th centuries under the rule of the Gonzaga family.

Detail of the Duomo exterior, Milan

1 The Duomo, Milan
 Milan's monumental cathedral presides over the central Piazza del Duomo, a huge square lined with stately porticoes. The piazza was created by clearing medieval streets and buildings in the 19th century to provide a better view of the church. To this day, the Duomo remains the city's social and geographical hub. The exterior is a confection of lofty pinnacles, statuary and filigree marble work. No visit to Milan is complete without a trip to the roof to clamber among the spires and buttresses and marvel at the view (see pp18–19).

2 The Last Supper, Milan
 Leonardo da Vinci finished painting The Last Supper on the refectory wall of the Dominican monastery in 1498. The work is outstanding for its portrayal of the disciples' emotions at the moment when Christ announces he will be betrayed. The restricted visits and filtered air create a rarefied atmosphere for a masterpiece that has survived against the odds. Using oil paint rather than watercolours meant the painting began to disintegrate almost immediately. To add to the damage, Napoleon's troops used the wall for target practice and Allied bombs destroyed the rest of the complex, leaving just this wall standing in 1943 (see p17).

3 Pinacoteca di Brera, Milan
 Napoleon opened this public gallery in 1805 to display works of art requisitioned from churches, monasteries and aristocrats throughout the north of Italy. Works include Mantegna's haunting The Dead Christ, Piero della Francesca's stylized Madonna with Child, Angels, Saints and Federico da Montefeltro, and Caravaggio's touchingly realistic Supper at Emmaus. An enjoyable and well organized museum with a good audio guide (see p16).

4 Castello Sforzesco, Milan
 The rulers of Milan, the Visconti, began construction of this castle in 1368, but it was under Ludovico Sforza that it became the centre of Milan's Renaissance court, employing artists such as Da Vinci and Bramante. These days the castle's museums are the main draw, with a wealth of art taken from Lombardy's churches by Napoleon's troops, furniture, and Michelangelo's touching, unfinished Pietà (see p17).

Rice

Rice was introduced to Italy in the Middle Ages from the Far East. Southern Lombardy's flat plains and climate proved ideal for rice cultivation with their sunny summers and plentiful water. It is found on the plates of all Italian homes in the form of risotto.

5 Navigli District, Milan

The mighty Naviglio Grande and the Naviglio Pavese lead off from the Darsena, or basin, down to the River Po and so to the Adriatic Sea. The canalside area was a working neighbourhood with tenement housing – case ringhiera – warehouses and factories. Since the canals fell out of use in the 1970s, the area has gradually become a focus for the city's nightlife with bars and restaurants lining the waterways. It is also something of an artists' corner with crafts workshops and galleries situated in the old courtyards (see p17).

6 Pinacoteca Ambrosiana, Milan

This gallery was founded by Cardinal Federico Borromeo in 1621 under the zealous atmosphere of the Counter Reformation and was conceived to help educate the public of their Catholic heritage. The collection includes important works of art, quirky curios and a priceless library of manuscripts. Some of the prize exhibits were collected by the Cardinal himself – a preparatory cartoon by Raffaello and Leonardo da Vinci's Codex Atlanticus – others were added later. ☉ Piazza Pio 2, Milan • Map V4 • 02 806 921 • Open Tue–Sun 9am–7pm • Adm • www.ambrosiana.it

Giovanni Muzzio's exhibition space, based in the Palazzo dell'Arte (1931), provides a focus for the city's contemporary design and architecture activities. Built as home to the tri-annual design exhibition, it now offers a selection of permanent and temporary exhibitions, a reference library, a specialist bookshop, a great café-restaurant (see p98) and a buzzing bar outside in the summer. ☉ Viale Alemagna 6, Milan • Map T2 • 02 724 341 • Open Tue–Sun 10:30am–8.30pm, closes 11pm Thu & Fri • Adm • www.triennale.it

8 The Torrazzo, Cremona

At 112-m (413-ft) high, the Torrazzo, rising out of Cremona's Piazza del Comune, is the tallest bell tower in Europe. The 502 steps to the top lead to wonderful views over the Po plain. The tower dates from the mid-13th century

A compulsory guided tour takes you through the tombs and artwork and out to the closed areas of the monastery. 📍 Via del Monumento, Pavia • Map C5 • Open Nov–Feb: 9–11am & 2:30–4:30pm; Mar–Oct: 9–11:30am & 2:30–5pm; Apr–Sep: 2:30–5:30pm; May–Aug: 2:30–6pm • Tip welcomed • www.certosadipavia.com

Lofty arches of the Palazzo Te, Mantova

10 Palazzo Te, Mantova
 On the southern edge of the town centre, the Palazzo Te was built as a summer retreat for Federico II Gonzaga and a residence for his mistress. Begun in 1525, the Mannerist palace and gardens are a creation by Giulio Romano, inspired by the villas of ancient Rome. In the palace rooms, the stuccoed walls and ceilings create a world of their own. 📍 Viale Te, Mantova • Map H4 • 0376 323 266 • Open Mon 1–6pm Tue–Sun 9am–6pm • Adm • www.palazzote.it

A Day Exploring Milan's Churches

Morning

🕒 Start the day with Da Vinci's The Last Supper (see p93). Book your slot a couple of months in advance. Then drop by the neighbouring church, Santa Maria delle Grazie, with its giant dome and charming courtyard by Bramante. Cross Corso Magenta and head down to Sant'Ambrogio, the 12th-century church founded by and housing the remains of the city's patron saint, Saint Ambrose. From here dodge round the back of the church and through ancient residential streets to Largo Carobbio, from where you can visit the San Lorenzo alle Colonne, reputedly Leonardo da Vinci's favourite Milanese church. Then, follow the Corso south through the medieval arch down to Sant'Eustorgio. This one holds the bones of the Magi and the Renaissance Portinari Chapel, accessed to the left of the church entrance. For lunch, head round the back of the church and across Parco delle Vetra to Cantina della Vetra (see p99).

Afternoon

After lunch, either walk along Via Torino or hop on to a tram heading to the Duomo (see p93). Buy a ticket from a newspaper stand before boarding and stamp it in the orange box. After exploring the inside of the Duomo, head up to the roof for a close-up of the marble work and to take in the unbeatable views across the city and – on a clear day – over to the Alps.

Left Currency Right Clock at a railway station

TOP 10 Planning Your Trip

1 What to Pack
Italians dress smartly; in the larger towns you may feel out of place if you dress too informally. A tie, however, will not be needed, although a suitable jacket would rarely be inappropriate. You will need to cover your shoulders and wear over-knee-length shorts or skirts while visiting churches and other religious sites.

2 Currency
The currency in Italy is the euro (€), which is divided into one hundred cents. The currency in Switzerland is the Swiss Franc (Fr. or CHF), which is also divided into cents. Most establishments in Switzerland, however, including shops, restaurants, hotels and ferry companies will readily accept euros for transactions.

3 Passports and Visas
Citizens of the European Union (EU), the USA, Canada, New Zealand and Australia can enter Italy and Switzerland with just a valid passport and stay for 90 days. If you wish to extend your stay, you should check with your consulate for further information.

4 Making Reservations
Not booking ahead could leave you out in the cold at certain times of year.

A slot to see Da Vinci's The Last Supper needs to be booked at least a month ahead, and more for weekends and in the summer. August is a very busy month on the lakes and an advance reservation will ensure you get the bed of your choice. Similarly, book ahead in Milan during the fashion shows (last week of Feb and Sep) or during the Design and Furniture Fair (mid-Apr).

5 Insurance
As with any trip, it is advisable to make sure that all your belongings are covered by travel insurance, and that health emergencies will be taken care of by local services or your health insurance. Also confirm that the pre-article limit covers your most valuable items, and that "dangerous sports" (such as hiking and watersports) are included in the insurance.

6 Driving Licence
Non-EU licence holders need a valid driving licence and an international driving permit as do holders of UK pre-1991 driving licences. Other EU drivers simply need to carry their photocard licence.

7 Time Difference
Italy is on Central European Time (CET): one hour ahead of London, six hours ahead of New York and eight hours behind Sydney.

8 Electrical Appliances
The electrical supply in Italy is 220V, although appliances requiring 240V will also work. Plugs are generally two pin but the diameter of the pins in some older establishments may differ, so a multi-plug adapter is very useful. Electrical equipment from the UK will need an adapter as will appliances from the US, which require a 220-to-110 transformer.

9 Baby's Needs
Nappies and milk formula are significantly more expensive in Italy than in other European countries, and baby foods tend to have more sugar and salt added. Health food shops in the larger towns can be a source of alternative brands.

10 Membership Cards
Members of the National Trust or the Royal Horticultural Society should bring their membership cards along as it allows free or discounted entry fees to various properties on the lakes. Similarly, an international student card, or even a university or college card, will help with various discounts around the region.

TOP 10 Getting To and Around

1 Airports

Malpensa, to the northwest of Milan, is the region's intercontinental hub; Linate to the east is the city's second airport serving mainly international flights. Airports at Bergamo, Brescia, Verona and Lugano (Switzerland) are well linked to the towns and villages of the lakes region. ☎ Milan Malpensa & Linate: www.sea-aeroportimilano.it; Bergamo: www.sacbo.it; Brescia: www.aeroportobrescia.it; Verona: www.aeroportoverona.it; Lugano: www.lugano-airport.ch

2 Driving to Italy

The route over the Alps from France or Switzerland is a spectacular entry into Italy. Note that French and Italian motorways all charge tolls, which are not expensive but they add up. In Switzerland, you must buy a window-screen vignette (€25) from customs officers or petrol stations.

3 Trains to Italy

Travelling with Eurostar and the French high-speed TGV to Milan takes around 11 hours from London and involves a change of stations in Paris. It is an enjoyable trip, although most of the journey is at night and prices are not competitive compared to air travel. ☎ 0870 0518 6186 • www.eurostar.com

4 Coaches to Italy

Buses leave from London for Milan several times a week and less frequently to Brescia, Turin and Verona. The journey takes 23 hours and is unlikely to be cheaper than a no-frills flight. ☎ 08705 143 219; • www.eurolines.co.uk

5 Getting Around by Ferry

Simple and efficient, the lake ferries are also good value and the perfect alternative to traffic-jammed roads. The main lakes also have car ferries crossing the middle. ☎ Lake Lugano: www.lakelugano.ch • Lakes Maggiore, Como & Garda: www.navigazionealaghi.it • Lake Iseo: www.navigazionealagoiseo.it

6 Getting Around by Train

The national train service is good value and efficient but it does not serve the lakes well. It does, however, connect all the main towns with a mixture of express trains and local stoppers. ☎ 06 44101 • www.trenitalia.com

7 Getting Around by Bus

Local buses link the lakeside villages with a regular, if not frequent, service; tickets are generally sold on the bus. The tickets for urban bus services usually need to be bought from newspaper kiosks or bars before boarding. Milan, Bergamo and southern Lake Garda have open-topped tourist buses that offer a hop-on-hop-off service around the sights. ☎ www.zaniviaggi.it

8 Rules of the Road

In Italy drive on the right and keep to the speed limits: 50 kmph in built-up areas, 110 kmph on dual carriageways and 130kph on motorways. Dip your headlights outside built-up areas and carry a warning triangle and a fluorescent jacket for breakdowns. Carry car documents (not photocopies) and your passport when driving.

9 Cycling Tips

Italy is passionate about cycling and you will see packs of multi-coloured cyclists everywhere. Most airlines will carry bikes, or they can be rented throughout the region. Flat, challenging, on-road or mountain-biking – opportunities abound (see pp40–41).

10 Driving in the Lakes Region

Much of the lakes region is best explored by public transport: the larger towns and the lakeside roads see heavy traffic and insufficient parking. Italian motorways are toll roads; you pay on exit with cash or a credit card. Most petrol stations close at 7pm and all day Sunday.

Remember to stamp your train ticket in the yellow machines on the station forecourts to avoid heavy on-the-spot fines.

TOP 10 Useful Information

1 Tourist Information

Most towns and large lakeside villages have tourist offices offering anything from printed fliers to detailed walks in the area, room-booking services and guided tours. On the whole, the staff speak English.

2 State Tourist Boards

Information from the Italian tourist board is easily available and their website can give you a flavour of the region. Switzerland Tourism, however, provide details of anything and everything that you might possibly need. ☎ www.enit.it • www.ticino.ch

3 Public Holidays

Most shops, sights and some restaurants will be closed on public holidays. Public transport will be significantly reduced and the lakes are likely to be inundated with daytrippers from surrounding towns.

4 Phone Numbers

To call Italy from abroad, dial the international access code, then 39 and then the number including the initial zero. To call Switzerland, dial the international access code, then 41 and then the number excluding the initial zero. In Italy, the area code needs to be dialled every time.

5 Media

Italian TV stations have little to offer foreigners and larger hotels usually offer CNN and BBC. However, Italian print journalism is of a higher standard and international press is always readily available.

6 Websites

Outdated information is not uncommon on Italian websites and a large number of places, including tourist offices and resorts, do not have websites at all. Italian hotels are increasingly offering online booking nowadays, but it is always wise to get a written confirmation.

7 High Season

High season around the lakes is June to September. Places are usually open from Easter to the end of October, but over the winter many of the lake villages and their hotels shut up shop.

8 Weather

It is warm to hot in summer and cold and often foggy in winter. July is the hottest month with an average of 26°C (79°F) while May, June and September are pleasant. Flash thunderstorms are common in the second half of August.

9 Maps

Most tourist offices can give you a free town plan. If you are looking for more detailed maps for striding out into the countryside, the Istituto Geografico Centrale and Kompass series are available in bookshops. The Swisstopo maps, in Switzerland, are excellent reference material.

10 Opening Hours

Shops and businesses open from 9am to 1–2pm and from 3–4pm to 6–7pm Mon–Sat; some still close on Monday mornings. Most museums are open Tue–Sat from 9–10am to 6–7pm, sometimes with a two-hour break for lunch.

TOP 10 Banking and Communications

1 Money

Italy's currency is the euro, which replaced the lira in 2002. There are seven euro notes – in denominations of 500, 200, 100, 50, 20, 10, and 5 euros – each a different colour and size. There are also eight different coin denominations – 2 and 1 euros and then 50, 20, 10, 5, 2 and 1 cents.

2 Banks

You will find at least one bank in most villages and the larger resorts and towns have several. Opening hours are usually on Monday to Friday, from 8:30am to 1:30pm and then for another hour in the afternoon, often 2:30–3:30pm. Banks offer the best rate of exchange for cash and they will almost invariably have an ATM for direct access to funds.

3 Bureaux de Change

The rates of exchange at a bureaux de change are generally significantly worse than at banks, but they are open for longer hours. In Italy, the bureaux de change on station forecourts have particularly bad rates; in Switzerland, however, they usually offer better rates than the banks.

4 Credit Cards

Credit cards (carte) are a useful backup source of funds and can be used in ATMs with a PIN number that has been authorized for use overseas. Note that in Italy, credit cards are not particularly widely used and many restaurants – and even some of the cheaper hotels – will only take cash.

5 Postal Services

Post offices are open from Monday to Saturday, between 8:30am and 1pm, and can be very busy during the mid-morning hours. Stamps (francobolli) can also be bought from most postcard shops as well as from tabacchi (tobacconists). Post boxes are easily identifiable by their red colour.

6 Postal Charges

The price of sending a standard letter or postcard anywhere in Europe is 65 cents. Posting the same to destinations in the USA, Australia and New Zealand costs 85 cents. Within Italy, the price for sending a standard letter or postcard is 60 cents.

7 Internet Points

Internet points are increasingly common around the region and many hotels now offer the service to their customers. Alternatively, there are a number of cafés with Wi-Fi services, or pay-as-you-use points in bars, libraries and phone centres.

8 Telephones

Coin-operated public phones are increasingly difficult to find in both Italy and Switzerland. Buy a phone card (scheda telefonica) from a newspaper stand or tabacchi and follow the English instructions. Otherwise, buy a prepaid phone card from the same places and dial the toll-free number to give your PIN (written on the back of the card). The rates are significantly cheaper for calls abroad.

9 Mobile Phones

If you plan to take your phone with you, then ensure that you have made the necessary "roaming" arrangements before leaving. Mobile phones in Italy and Switzerland work on the GSM European standard, which is compatible with UK phones and those from the rest of Europe, Australia and New Zealand, but not with most from the US and Canada.

10 Dialling Codes

The code is integral to Italian numbers and must be dialled even in the same city. To call home from Italy, dial 00 then your country code (UK: 44; Australia: 61; New Zealand: 64) and then the number excluding the initial zero. Dial 001 and then the full number for calling the US and Canada.

TOP 10 Security and Health

1 Emergencies

Call 113 for general emergencies; see the numbers listed in the box below for specific assistance. Most emergency services will be able to communicate with you in English if necessary.

2 Theft

Italy is relatively safe in terms of crime but tourism always attracts petty thefts. Keep an eye on your bags, especially in markets, on public transport and around tourist hot spots. Be wary of people begging with cardboard signs or newspapers: they are often used to distract you whilst your pockets are being emptied.

3 Drinking Water

Tap water in the towns and villages around the lakes is safe to drink but the taste is not always palatable. Out of habit, restaurants will always serve bottled water. Water labelled "acqua non potabile" is not drinkable.

4 Hospitals

Italian hospitals (ospedale) are efficient and the emergency departments (pronto soccorso) run on a triage system so the most serious cases are seen first. There may be a nominal charge (around €30) if your condition is not considered urgent but a visit to A&E is still the best way of getting treatment. Take your passport and, if you are a EU Citizen, EHI card along.

5 Pharmacies

Italian pharmacists (farmacie) are qualified to give medical advice and medication for minor health problems and are often the best first port of call. They stay open on a rota system and a list of the pharmacies on weekend or night-time duty is displayed by the door.

6 Dentists

A visit to the dentist in Italy is best avoided: treatment is not covered by the health service and prices are extortionate. English-speaking practices are available in the main towns but you would be better waiting until you get home. In an emergency, head for the local hospital.

7 Women Travellers

Italian men do look at and comment on women more than men in other countries but the flipside is that they are also often more courteous. Women may feel annoyed by the unwanted attention but should not usually feel threatened.

8 The Police

There are various police bodies in Italy but the three that visitors deal with are the Polizia Stradale on motorways, the Vigili Urbani who check parking and direct traffic, and the Carabinieri for general law and order. Thefts are reported to the latter, at a police station.

9 Sun Protection and Mosquitoes

The cool breezes blowing off the lakes can disguise the strength of the sun. Always apply high-factor sunscreens especially if you are going out on the water. Mosquitoes are a common problem in the summer in Milan and the southern reaches of the lakes; keep repellents and sprays to hand.

10 Lost Property

In villages it is worth checking at the police office in case any lost property (oggetti smarriti) has been handed in; you are unlikely to be so lucky in a larger town. For belongings left on boats or trains, your best bet is to check at the station or ticket office.

Left Cappuccino Centre Cars by the lakeside Right Cheese

TOP 10 Things to Avoid

1 Monday Sightseeing

Don't leave your sightseeing to a Monday. Most state museums and galleries, as well as the majority of private ones, throughout Italy are closed all day Monday. Some of the privately run lake villas and gardens are the exception to this rule but check carefully beforehand.

2 Driving in the Lakes Region

Driving around the lakes is best avoided as most towns and villages are car-free areas. There is insufficient parking and the lakeside roads are solid with slowly moving lines of cars and lorries. Public transport is good value, reliable and leaves you free to enjoy the views.

3 August

If possible, try not to book a trip to the Lakes for August. The two weeks around the public holiday on the 15th are the busiest. Prices rise significantly for accommodation and many hotels insist on a three-day minimum stay. Crowded sights and queues lead to a stressful holiday experience.

4 No Reservation

If you are planning to see Da Vinci's The Last Supper in Milan, make sure you book as far in advance as possible:

several months may be necessary for summer weekends. Likewise, accommodation on the lakes in August and during the design and fashion weeks in Milan needs to be reserved well ahead of time.

5 Cappuccino After Midday

A milky cappuccino – or cappuccino – is a breakfast drink in Italy. Italians are sticklers for convention and ordering a cappuccino later than midday will simply mark you down as an ignorant foreigner. If you want your coffee with milk, café macchiato is a good alternative.

6 Being Shy About Speaking Italian

You have got nothing to lose and most Italians will be more than pleased if you try. Just a few well-chosen words from the phrase book on pp126–7 can help you to express yourself. Of course, understanding the reply is another matter altogether.

7 Winter

Most restaurants, hotels and sights around the lakes region are closed from November to Easter and ferry services are reduced to a minimum. However, there are many lively ski resorts further up the valleys and the Christmas markets in Bergamo,

Verona and Milan can be magical on crisp, frosty days.

8 Inappropriate Clothing

Places of worship throughout Italy insist on shoulders being covered (no vest t-shirts) and skirts or shorts reaching below the knee for both men and women. These rules are stringently adhered to with security personnel at the entrance to some churches turning away visitors who are inappropriately dressed.

9 Cheese and Fish

On the whole, cheese and fish are not eaten together in Italy. This means that parmesan or grana padano is rarely served with a seafood pasta or a fish risotto. Of course, there is no harm asking for cheese along with fish, but some waiters may raise an eyebrow.

10 Touristy Restaurants

Like tourist hot spots the world over, there are many restaurants around the lakes region that serve over-priced, poor quality food relying on the fact that you won't be returning anyway. The smarter way to find delicious food is to get away from the crowds, tail some locals or follow your nose. Part of the joy is discovering a great place by yourself.

Left Public transport Centre Church of Sant'Ambrogio Right Takeaway food shop

TOP 10 Budget Tips

1 Drink Standing Up

A drink at the bar is decidedly cheaper than one served at a table, especially an outside table where the surcharge is significant. Whether you want to down a quick espresso or while away time nibbling on the complimentary treats with an aperitivo, elbow yourself a little space at the bar.

2 Self-Cater

Picking up your basket and shopping for supplies can make you feel like a real local as well as save you cash. Street markets provide a wonderful array of fresh ingredients and even large supermarkets make an exciting alternative to those at home.

3 Public Transport

Forget hiring a car and paying for expensive petrol, parking and insurance, when there is good-value Italian public transport as a far better option. There are further discounts for over 60s, under 12s, sometimes for students and under 4s go free. Airport transfers, funicular railways and cable-car rides compliment the trinity of trains, buses and ferries.

4 Simple Restaurants

Italian food is simple, best when made with good, fresh ingredients. Local trattorias or small family-run restaurants can offer the best of this kind of cooking. Opt for the day's specials and wash it down with a carafe of excellent house wine. As well as saving money, the experience is likely to be more memorable.

5 Pay in Cash

To avoid paying extra fees for foreign transactions or exorbitant credit card rates, pay with cash. You will feel like a local too, as most Italians rarely use cards. Some hotels even offer a small discount for cash as they won't have to pay the card company's fees.

6 Avoid High Season

Peak season means exorbitant prices. May and September are delightful times to visit: the weather is warm, visitor numbers comparatively low and accommodation prices are significantly cheaper. Getting to the region should also be more economical than in the height of summer.

7 Put Together a Picnic

Takeaway food is found everywhere in Italy. A slice of pizza or fresh focaccia from the baker's or a panino made up from a gastronomia give you a delicious ready-made picnic in minutes. Alternatively, put together your own picnic basket from a local street market and round it all off with an ice cream.

8 Make the Most of Discounts

If you are over 60, under 26, a student, or a teacher and have ID to prove it, ask for a discount. Some places are strict about the ID they accept; others will happily waver large chunks of the cost of a ticket. Members of the National Trust and the Royal Horticultural Society should take their cards to the lakeside villas for discounts.

9 Free Attractions

Enjoy the picturesque beauty of the Italian lakes for free. Whatever your ability – mountain climbing, hill walking or a stroll along the promenade – there are routes for all levels throughout the region. And if you tire of the views – or the weather turns – churches and chapels can be fascinating and are free.

10 Get Away from the Crowds

Prices are always lower off the beaten track. Enjoy the tourist centres and then head away when it is time to eat. Lakeside restaurants and cafés charge top prices but you can enjoy the same views sitting on a bench having eaten elsewhere for much less.

Left Antipasto Centre Red wine Right Colourful Gelateria sign

TOP 10 Dining Tips

1 Antipasto

Antipasto literally means "before the meal"; it is the appetizer course and it is also one of the best ways to try local specialties. A typical offering would be a plate of affettati misti (local salami and cured meats like bresaola and prosciutto) or a dish of marinated lake fish.

2 Primo

The choice of first courses (primi) will include rice and pasta dishes as well as soups. The pasta is often homemade and served with a sauce or stuffed like ravioli or tortellini and served with melted sage butter. Arborio rice, grown along the Po valley to the south of Milan, is combined with seasonal vegetables, fish or meat to make creamy risottos.

3 Secondo

The secondo or main course usually features a fish or meat dish and perhaps a little garnish. Meats include manzo (beef), agnello (spring lamb), vitello (veal), pollo (chicken), cinghiale (boar), coniglio (rabbit) and anatra (duck). For vegetables or a salad, you will need to ask for a side order (contorno) or insalata as well.

4 Coffee

Ordering a coffee in ritual-ridden Italy is a minefield. Frothy, white cappuccino is served for breakfast, a strong black shot of coffee (espresso) at any time of day. An Americano is similar to a filter coffee and caffè latte is very milky.

5 Cover Charges and Tipping

A cover charge is a ubiquitous addition to the bill here. It varies between one and five euros per person and often includes bread – regardless of whether you asked for it, want it or even eat it. For tipping, if there is no service charge included (servizio incluso) in the bill, it is customary to leave around a 10 per cent tip for a meal. For a coffee or drink, a few coins will suffice.

6 Wine and Water

As well as the wine list (carta dei vini), be aware that most places will have a decent house wine (vino della casa) that they will serve in full, half (mezzo) or quarter (quarto) carafes of either red (rosso) or white (bianco). Italians invariably drink and serve bottled water. Still water (acqua naturale) and sparkling (acqua frizzante) will be offered with any meal.

7 Slow Food

The Slow Food Movement (www.slowfood.it) was founded in 1986 by Carlo Petrini to promote and "rediscover the flavours and savors of regional cooking and banish the degrading effects of Fast Food." Look out for Slow-Food endorsed restaurant which will invariably serve well-cooked seasonal, local produce.

8 Gelaterie and Dolce

Of course desserts can vary hugely depending on the type of restaurant, but tiramisu is frequently on menus as is torta or crostata di mela (apple cake or tart). Once you have tried ice cream (gelato) that has been made on the premises (produzione propria) it is difficult to ever go back to the mass-produced alternatives. Follow the locals to find the best ice-cream shop in town.

9 Restaurant Types

Taverna, trattoria, osteria and locanda are all names for family-run, moderately priced establishments, but these days you'll have to look at the menu to determine the price and style of cooking. Ristoranti are, however, nearly always formal, pricey places.

10 Bars

Most Italian bars serve pastries and sandwiches alongside a morning cappuccino, espresso throughout the day and apéritifs in the evening.

TOP 10 Accommodation Tips

1 Bed and Breakfast

Renting a room is an increasingly popular form of holiday accommodation in Italy. Prices and standards vary but the website www.bbitalia.it is a good first port of call, as are the agriturismi (farm stays) organizations or tourist offices.

2 Renting an Apartment or Villa

3 Hotels

This region of Italy offers everything from the most exclusive hotels in the world to plain establishments with shared facilities – and, of course, everything in between. The Italian terms albergo, locanda and pensione are pretty much interchangeable translations of “hotel”.

4 Agriturismi Stays

Staying on an agriturismo means staying on a working farm – in this region often a rice-growing or wine-making estate. They are usually inexpensive lodgings although some can be very luxurious. Accommodation can vary from a room with a shared bathroom to self-contained apartments. Activities are often on offer, from horse riding or cycling to wine-tasting and guided walks.

☎ Turismo Verde: 06 324 0111 • www.turismoverde.it; www.agriturist.com

5 Room with a View

If you have your heart set on a lake view or any other specific request, make sure that you request it at the time of booking. Rooms with a view often come with a small supplement, as do extra beds or cots.

6 Booking Ahead

In peak season (summer and Aug) many of the region's hotels get booked up. If you prefer to know exactly where you are going, make reservations in advance. Many tourist offices will help you book a last-minute room if you want to try your luck, although it may be a different price bracket than you were expecting.

7 Camping

This very popular camping destination offers something for everyone. Lakeside sites are invariably mini resorts with pools, places to eat, maybe even organized activities, but away from the water things can get simpler. Many places offer cabins and apartments as well as tents or tent pitches.

8 Monastery Stays

Staying in a working convent or monastery offers a well-priced option. Open to everyone regardless of gender or religion, decor is usually plain, beds are singles and all rooms have private bathrooms. Some establishments have curfews, however. ☎ www.monasterystays.com

9 Hostels

Most major towns have the provision of shared dorms in cheap hostels. However, the Hostelling Association has hostels around the lakes that offer a sociable alternative to cheap hotels, with decent facilities at good prices. The HI Hostels at Menaggio, Bergamo, Riva, and Lugano are particularly worth checking out. ☎ www.hihostels.com

10 Hidden Extras

By law, room prices for all seasons must be displayed in the hotel room (usually on the back of the door); taxes must also be stated. Check whether breakfast is included in the price you are quoted.
